GREATEST OCEAN DEPTHS. ENCOUNTERED WHILE SURVETING

FOR THE PACIFIC CABLE, A Submarine Valley 31,614 Feet Below the Surface-Fully Half of Sand Island, One of the Midways, Literally Covered With Sea Birds—A Few Land Birds Seen. WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.-In a long report to the Secretary of the Navy, dated San Francisco, Feb. 12, Lieutenant-Commander H. M.

Hodges, commanding the surveying ship Nero, tells of the surveys made for a telegraphic cable line between Honolulu and Manila by way of Guam and Yokohama. In trying to find a southern route to connect Guam with the proposed line from Honolulu to the Midway Islands, the surveyors encountered a sub-marine valley, which was christened "Nero Deep." Lieutenant-Commander Hodges says that he "is convinced that it cannot be gotten around with a cable." Here the two deepest casts and the two deepest temperatures ever taken were recorded. The depths are 5,160 fathoms (30,960 feet), and 5,269 fathoms (31,614 feet.) and the temperatures are 35.9 at 5,070 fathoms and 36 at 5,101 fathoms. From the date of sailing from San Francisco April 22, 1809, to her return there, Feb. 11, 1900, the Nero steamed 29,283 knots. She was actually at sea 240 days.

Lieut.-Commander Hodges refers to a visit paid by the Nero to the Midway Islands, but leaves a fuller account to the Nero's medical officer, Assistant-Surgeon Frank E. McCullogh. Lieut.-Commander Hodges says that Sand Island, the larger of the Midways, has no inhabitants. It has abundance of sea birds and eggs and some land birds. He says he would not recommend the water and suggests the erection of an evaporator if the place is to be used as a cable station.

Dr. McCollogh describes Sand Island as of coral formation, surrounded by a coral reef. No fresh water is to be seen on the surface, but it may be obtained by digging about four feet. The coral has disintegrated, forming a coarse sand so bleached as to be extremely trying to the eyes. It reflects the heat of the sun and scorches the face. "On the highest portion of the island-the northern-and not more than thirty yards from the beach," said Dr. McCollogh, "a one-room house was constructed many years ago by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, at a time when they intended using the island as a coaling station. A placard within announces that the writer thereof, the commander of a schooner, had been wrecked on the island in September, 1888, and had remained there until February, 1880; that during that time he had buried four of his rew. He also stated that by digging four feet at an indicated point, water, and good water, too, could be obtained. There were also numerous evidences of subsequent occupation. It was near this house that the daiken was growing and there were a number of the plants growing near by. From this I infer that with care and fertilization many vegetables of economic value could be grown. In 1867 it was reported that on the adiacent eastern islands, about five acres of a vegetable mould of a foot in depth existed, and it would be well worth transporting a sufficient quantity of it to improve the soil of this part of Sand Island, which I regard as the most suitable for habitation.

"The number of sea birds on this island is infinite. Our visit was made during the nesting senson, and over fully half the island the sand was literally covered with sea birds. It was quite impossible to cross it without stepping on the nesting birds and their eggs, unless precaution was taken to drive them away by means of a shrub branch. The noise of when they intended using the island as a was quite impossible to cross it without stepping on the nesting birds and their eggs, unless precaution was taken to drive them away by means of a shrub branch. The noise of the retreating birds as they hovered overhead, screeching and darting threateningly, was deafening. The young Pacific albatross, fairly grown, but with incomplete feathers, refused indeed, to retreat and valiantly maintained his ground. The most numerous of these birds are the Pacific albatross, a species of the sula, commonly known as the 'booby,' a term, the 'bos'n' or red-billed tropic bird, and the frigate or man-of-war bird. A few land birds, apparently plover and the sickle-billed curlew, were occasionally seen. Of these birds, the tern, plover and curlew are of economic value as food.

"The temperature in May ranged from 67 to 69 degrees Fahrenheit. In the surface of the water was about 77 degrees Fahrenheit. When the Nero rounded the island on Jan. 3 last the air temperature was 69 to 67 Fahrenheit and that of the surface of the water 69. Eastern Island, the smaller of the two, was not visited. It is much more luxuriant in vegetation than Sand Island."

MARYLAND BRYAN MEN ALERT. State Convention Called to Name Contest

ing Delegates to Kansas City. BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 24.-In order that there shall be no question as to which set of lelegates to the Democratic National Convention are first in the field, the State Convention of the Chicago Platform Democrats will be held on next Wednesday night in Baltimore. The action of the Democratic National Committee in selecting Kansas City and July 4 was hardly completed before the Chicago Platform Democrats of Maryland were in the field with the announcement of their convention. A provisional committee has been formed which has issued a call for the convention to be held in Baltimore on next Wednesday night. The call is in the shape of a blank credential for delegates. It contains the list of members of the Provisional Committee, and the statement that the convention is held to effect a ment that the convention is held to effect a permanent organization and send sixteen delegates to the next Democratic National Convention. The delegate is also advised to bring the notice along with him and present it at the door to the sergeant-at-arms. Evidently any attempt to pack or stampede the convention will be nipped in the bud.

The moving spirits in this convention are from the faction of the silver wing of the W. J. Bryan Gold and Silver League of Marvland, which is known as the "Beveridge wing," Mr. W. E. Beveridge being the ruling spirit in the organization when it broke caway from the Maryland Democratic Association last fall. The parent association believes in strictly Democratic methods of procedure and majority rule. Its members are going to carry this out still further by going into the regular Democratic primaries and submitting to the result.

The Chicago Platform Democrats have no such idea. They purpose to send sixteen out-and-out silver men as a contesting delegation to Kansas City, and hope to get at least half the votes. They count largely on the treatment which Bryan received here in January from the leading Democratic politicians of the State to help them out in their contention, and hope to be able to convince the Committee on Credentials that it will be very dangerous to seat a Maryland delegation as elected by a convention controlled by Mr. Gorman and Gov. Smith. Their chances of being seated is regarded by the regular organization as about one in ten thousand.

THE DIAMOND HUNTER'S WIFE,

Says He Was Cruel, Often Absent, and Did Not Sufficiently Provide for Her. Justice Lawrence of the Supreme Court has reserved decision in an action brought against Benjamin W. Levy, a diamond hunter, by his wife for a separation on allegations of cruelty. The wife told of several occasions when her husband struck her. She left him about a year ago. She said further that he made long trips about the world and on occasions did not leave provision for her. He denied these charges and said that when he returned from his last trip in 1808 he found that a vault in the National Park Bank, in which he had $3,000 and a lot of diamond specimens which he needed in his business, had been emptied by her. He had left her a key.

Levy says that he has been more than a score of times to South Africa in quest of diamonds. He has hunted for them in Brazil, and when the present case is decided he will make a trip again to Kimberley. He said that one of his acquisitions in South Africa was a bunch of diamonds known as the "blue mass." which has a value of $50,000 as a mineralogical specimen. provision for her. He denied these charges

Tierney, his counsel, asked for an adjournment until next Friday for an adjournment until next Friday to await the return of his father, who has been in Europe. This was granted. The complainant is Mrs. Annie Hyland, who until yesterday was employed as a servant at the Holloway farm on North street. According to her complaint, she was badly treated, and decided to leave the place. Thereupon, she says, Sydney kicked and punched her. She alleges that he did not desist until she was rescued by D. See and several other persons. The boy's lawyer says that Mrs. Hyland abused Mrs. Holloway and the boy only protected his mother. Just as Sydney was leaving the court room he was served with papers in a civil action to recover served with papers in a civil action to recover $5,000 damages.
